Course Description:

This course starts by examining the philosophical implications and the mechanisms of biological evolution. We then survey the Order Primates, and examine what it is about the Order, to which we as humans belong, that makes it unique among other mammalian taxa. Finally, we will apply our working knowledge of evolutionary principles to examine the origins of hominins and their subsequent evolution over the past 6 million years that eventually leads to modern humans.

Required Textbook: A Human Voyage: Exploring Biological Anthropology. Anne Keenleyside and Richard Lazenby. 2011. Nelson Education.

In the event of an emergency or illness, the instructor must be notified before, or as soon as possible after the exam (no more than 24 hours), and documentation must be provided - NO EXCEPTIONS - in order for a make-up exam to be scheduled. Make-up exams may be in any format.

The best way to contact your instructor is email – sdcarneg@ucalgary.ca

Missing a final exam and writing a make-up needs to be arranged through the registrar (i.e. deferred exam).

EXAM RESULTS AND GRADE APPEALS

Marks for each of the term tests will be posted on Blackboard not less than one week after the exams are taken.

Exams are NOT returned to the students. You can consult your copy during my office hours or by appointment. If you have concerns about the marking of your exam, you will be asked to provide a short written statement explaining your concern. The question will then be re-graded and marks adjusted at my discretion (may go up or down or unchanged). Deadline for the submission of your written statement is one week after results of an examination have been posted.

- Questions can be emailed to me as well and I will get back to you as soon as I can. We may also discuss them in class if relevant.
