COURSE DESCRIPTION:

The course begins with a history of Indigenous-Euro-Canadian relations covering such topics as the early stages of colonization, the Indian Act, various treaties, Residential Schools, the Sixties Scoop etc. This material then serves as the necessary background to examine such contemporary issues as health, justice, the reserve system, education, land claims, modern treaties, Aboriginal rights, the pursuit of self government, and the development of Aboriginal policy. Issues are discussed from various perspectives: indigenous peoples, anthropologists, the media, government, and the general public. Throughout the course, we will also address issues of power, agency, voice, identity and authority.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

By the end of the course students will be expected to

1. Describe the history and experiences of Canada's Indigenous peoples in relation to changing political and cultural circumstances.
2. Explain the major issues facing Canada's indigenous peoples today.
3. Analyze Indigenous issues from multiple perspectives, e.g. indigenous, anthropological, governmental, media etc.
4. Evaluate how differences in power and agency have impacted the identities of Canada's indigenous peoples.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Academic integrity is essential to the pursuit of learning and scholarship in a university, and to ensuring that a degree from the University of Calgary is a strong signal of each student’s individual academic achievements. As a result, the University treats cases of cheating and plagiarism very seriously. Non-academic integrity also constitutes an important component of this program.

For detailed information on what constitutes academic and non-academic misconduct, please refer to the following link: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-2-1.html>

All suspected cases of academic and non-academic misconduct will be investigated following procedures outlined in the University Calendar. If you have questions or concerns about what constitutes appropriate academic behavior or appropriate research and citation methods, you are expected to seek out additional information on academic integrity from your instructor or from other institutional resources.

Where there is a criminal act involved in plagiarism, cheating or other academic misconduct, e.g., theft (taking another student's paper from their possession, or from the possession of a faculty member without permission), breaking and entering (forcibly entering an office to gain access to papers, grades or records), forgery, personation and conspiracy (impersonating another student by agreement and writing their paper) and other such offences under the Criminal Code of Canada, the University may take legal advice on the appropriate response and, where appropriate, refer the matter to the police, in addition to or in substitution for any action taken under these regulations by the University

TEACHING EVALUATIONS / USRI (Universal Student Ratings of Instruction)

At the University of Calgary, feedback provided by students through the Universal Student Ratings of Instruction (USRI) survey provides valuable information to help with evaluating instruction, enhancing learning and teaching, and selecting courses. Your responses make a difference, please participate! Website: <http://www.ucalgary.ca/usri/>

Writing Across the Curriculum

Writing skills are not exclusive to English courses and, in fact, should cross all disciplines. The University supports the belief that throughout their University careers, students should be taught how to write well so that when they graduate their writing abilities will be far above the minimal standards required at entrance. Consistent with this belief, students are expected to do a substantial amount of writing in their University courses and, where appropriate, members of faculty can and should use writing and the grading thereof as a factor in the evaluation of student work. The services provided by the Writing Support, part of the Student Success Centre, can be utilized by all undergraduate and graduate students who feel they require further assistance
