This course is designed as a follow-up to the ARKY 341 & 343 sequence which surveyed the pre-Columbian cultures of Mesoamerica. In The Legacy of Mesoamerica we will consider how the traditional cultures of Mexico and Central America have adapted to post-Conquest contact with Colonial European culture. In some cases indigenous groups have acculturated and in the process lost many of their cultural traits; in other cases they have resisted change, or simply changed selectively; and in still other cases the resistance has erupted into active revolt, calling into question whether the “Conquest” has ever ended? Students will learn of the diversity of indigenous cultures that still thrive in Middle America: the Maya, Nahua, Huichol, Mixtec, Zapotec, and more. They will read ethnographic essays on traditional lifeways and view ethnographic films of traditional activities, including ritual, craft production, and domestic life. By focussing an anthropological lens on traditional peoples of Middle America, archaeology students will gain the richness that ethnographic analogy can bring to archaeological interpretations of the more distant past. Archaeology is a discipline ideally designed for the study of culture change, and the study of the historical anthropology of post-Conquest Middle America can reveal important patterns that can in turn inform on pre-Columbian Mesoamerica.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING:

Students will be responsible for readings in the text, as well as assigned articles and documentary films to be shown in class. The course will be conducted as a lecture, with the expectation that students will participate in discussions of the films and readings. Requirements will include two midterm exams (25 pts each), five article/film summaries (2 pts each), and a final exam (40 pts), totaling 100 points. Students interested in writing a research paper, worth 25 pts, can substitute that for one of the midterm exams. Individual grades will be based on total points received:

- 97-100 = A+
- 93-96 = A
- 87-89 = B+
- 83-86 = B
- 77-79 = C+
- 73-76 = C
- 67-69 = D+
- 60-66 = D
- 90-92 = A-
- 80-82 = B-
- 70-72 = C-
- Less than 60 points = F

RESEARCH PAPERS

A short research paper (4-6 pages) may be substituted in place of a mid-term exam. Paper topics should be cleared with the professor in advance, but may include such themes as cultures or cultural practices. A good place to look for topics is in the textbook, readings, or in anthropology/archaeology journals. A research paper should involve at least 5 published sources (not including the textbook), and at least one of those should be from a scholarly journal; Web sources may be (cautiously!) included in addition to the 5 published sources. Referencing format should follow the example found in American Antiquity.

IMPORTANT: Plagiarism, defined as copying more than 5 words in succession or using information without adequate citation (i.e., reference and page number) of the original source, is a violation of academic integrity. Research papers that plagiarize will receive a score of 0, and the student may be turned in to the Faculty of Arts for potential expulsion (see the U of Calgary Calendar).

EXTRA CREDIT

Students may receive extra credit points, up to 5 pts maximum, for work in addition to class assignments. For example, news items relevant to indigenous cultures of Middle America can be reviewed and shared with the class for extra credit. The University occasionally has lectures relevant to the class that can also be reviewed for extra credit. The goal of these assignments is to encourage students to learn about Middle America from sources beyond those offered through the course.

TEXTBOOK and READINGS:

Additional readings will be available on JSTOR and other web sites:
